SUMMARY

Hannah is often described as 'a delight', she has a work ethic often described as dedicated and determined; and a personality that's full of life that makes her a pleasure to be taught by. She is a professional, versatile dancer based in London who has trained both on the underground scene and in a formal classical training environment. She performs nationally and internationally and has a myriad of experience in live performance and dance for camera.

Hannah has been teaching for over 10 years, teaching people from a multitude of backgrounds: beginners to professionals; those with learning/movement disabilities to the highly skilled; from age 3 through to 80+. This breadth of experience has given her a broad and detailed understanding of how help a dancer progress to the next level, physically, mentally and artistically. She has also become very adept at quickly understanding how an individual learns best, and as a result has an exceptional ability to bring the best out of that individual.
